Weak Spots at Right Guard, Tackle, and Quarter Back-Increased Bank and Life in the Play-One Outfit to Each Man-Coach Watson Gets the Oarsmen to Work-Talk of Changing the Course-Seventy-five Candidates for Tyn k Honors CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6,-Capt. Arthur Brower started in the football season at Har-vard with a wealth of material at his command, but as the weeks go by the prospects of having a crack eleven are certainly not growing any rosier. There have been several disappoint-ments with regard to candidates, and the line has been unexpectedly weakened. The real reason for the slow development, however, is in the weakness of the coaching force.

The eleven has struggled along so far withonly man who has been in constant attendance at Soldiers' Field, and he has intimated that his law practice will prevent his giving much more time to football. In case he is compelled to leave Brewer will be in a bad way for some one to drill his team in the fine points of football. Cranston, Trafford, Waters, Mackle, and Bob Wrenn get out occasionally, but there is not one of them that is in a position to give the eleven much attention. The result of the lack of system is plainly apparent in the playing of the team. They do not work well together in either defensive or offensive work, and the interfer-ence has been very slight and ineffectual.

In one respect there has been a great improve-ment during the past week, and that is in the speed with which plays are executed. The lesson of the Dartmouth game was well learned, and since then the men have been playing with some show of dash and life, Unquestionably, the weak spots are right guard and tackle and quarter back. None of the men who have played in Norton Shaw's place has shown anything that entitles him to a position on a 'varsity eleven. Gould shows no particular improvement at right tackle, and it is quite possible that he may have to give way to either Houghton or Duffield. For quarter back Beale

Houghton or Duffield. For quarter back Beale and Borden are having a very even fight. Wrenn has devoted considerable attention to both, and they are improving somewhat.

The back field is strong enough. Charles Brewer has been playing at his old place at full back during most of the practice games with Fairchild on the second eleven. Fairchild is still doing all the drop kicking, however, and on that account seems to have a very good call to hold his place on the 'varsity, Gonterman has improved more than any of the other half backs, his splendid speed showing up to advantage in sprints around the ends. The line, with the exception of the places mentioned, is strong enough, taking the men individually. What is wanted is a well-developed and well-executed system of team play. The men seem to be in very fair physical condition, and there has not been an accident of a serious nature up to the present.

executed system of team play. The men seem to be in very fair physical condition, and there has not been an accident of a serious nature up to the present.

The agritation over the question of a game with Yale is apparently about over. It is said, anowever, that during the past week some correspondence concerning basebail dates next apring passed between the two managers, in the course of which no doubt was left that Harvard would make it footbail or nothing this year, and, indeed, for several years to come.

There has been surprisingly little grumbling among the men this year on account of the economy to which they have been subjected by reason of the anticipated lessening of receipts. One suit of footbail clothing is all the best man en the team gets this year, and every one on the team has given bonds for payment of board before going to the training table.

Coach Watson has gotten the oarsmen fairly to work. He has had most of last year's crew out in pair-oars during the past week, and as soon as the university's haunch arrives he will have them out in the eight. If a vote could be taken among the rowing men at Harvard to day it would undoubtedly favor the changing of the course for intercollegiate boat races from four to three miles. There has never been any change in position after the three-mile flag is passed, they say, and the last mile does no good in deciding which is the better crew. Another thing which the men here seem heartily six of is the New London course. They would like to see the Cornell race pulled somewhere else next year, possibly at Springfield, or at some point on the Hudson River, The agreement with the New London authorities expired last year, and the london receipts with the Englishmen will remember as a pleasant feature of their American trip. If has been announced authoritiatively that President Ellot will deliver an address of welcome to the Cambridge track athletes to Harvard. Every effort is being made to have the affair something that the Englishmen will remember as a pleasant

Seventy-five men are already out training for the track team. A new man of promise has ap-peared for the mile. His name is Grant. He has done 4:35 with comparatively no training, is strong as a horse, and may be capable of al-most anything apparently. Patterson, Cornell's weight thrower, is among those who practise daily on Holmes Field.

THE TIGERS WILL NOT PLAY. An Offer of a $1,000 Cup for Princeton and Old Penn to Contest For.

PRINCETON, Oct. 6 .- Quite a stir was created in football circles here to-day by the report that James Elverson, Jr., of Philadelphia had made an offer of a cup worth $1,000 to be contested for by the Princeton and University of Pennsylvania teams. The communication sent to A. G. Millbank, manager of the Princeton team, ditions as to when and where the game should be played or as to the rules that should govern it these details being left entirely to the management of the two teams. The bitter feeling against Pennsylvania has almost entirely dis appeared, and the undergraduates as a body would be only too glad to have their pets meet the Quakers. The alumni, too, of whom there are a large number in Philadelphia, are anxious to see another contest between the two uni-to see another contest between the two universities.

There are a number of difficulties, however, that appear to prevent a contest this season at least. In the first place, the action of the Graduate Advisory Committee, as a result of the feeling shown at the game at Trenton last fail, would alone prevent the present management from arranging a game, no matter how much they would like to do. The two elevens are playing under different rules, and this fact also would tend to prevent a union. The Princeton management has a complete schedule of games up to Nov. 23, the Yale date, which is practically the close of the season, and it certainly would be an injustice to any of the small teams with whom a contest had been arranged to take their date away and give it to Pennsylvania.

Capt. Lea said to-night in regard to the offer that he considered it a very generous one, and if it had been made before the schedule had been completed and the new rules approved there might have been a chance of Princeton meeting Pennsylvania. He further said that a Shtesi this year between the two teams was utterly out of the question.

The showing made by candidates for the been completed and the new rules approved there might have been a chance of Princeton Beetling Pennsylvania. He further said that a territy out of the question.

The showing made by candidates for the Princeton team in the games with Elizabeth and Rutgers is, to say the least, very encouraging to the undergraduates here. The feeling now is that, barring accidents liable to happen to the men in playing, there seems to be no read of condition. At high, after practice, each may is required to make a report of his weight and condition, and a doctor is present to look after the bruises. The action of the faculty in too permitting the men who have conditionate play on the team will not hurt the prospects in the flower trips who have not aclear record in the classes. The faculty's action will also refer to baseball and track men in the future.

The only position on the line that is likely to be at all week is left end. Johnston is being tried for this place and is doing only fair work. His chief ault is tackling. All the other places for each position, in case of injury to the regular player. Gaylar's work at centre is already up to 'varsity standard, and he is almost sure of the place. If trowdis could be laduced to come out Gaylay might be pushed to hold the place, but Crowdis refuses to don the jacket this fall produces are the player. Smith is at the head of the list at present, and appears to be capable of filling the position satisfactorily. His weight places him ahead of Suter and Pos. All of the candidates are sure tacklers with the exception of Brokaw, who never gets his man low enough.

The candidates trying for half back make a promising collection. The coachers should be able to pick at least two good sets of backs. Rosengarten is the only star of the combination. Ayers has sufficient weight, but is altogether too slow. He does not run fast enough to keep up to his interference. He is being well coached, Fulton, Geer, and Armstrong are sill doing well. Baird's stock as a full back took a drop last week, and he is now trying for half. Bannard will have to hustle to keep his place, now that Pops is looking for full back. Bannard is a good man at bucking the line and in the interference, but when it comes to punting Pope beats him out.

The team has had the best of coaching so far. Johnny Poe has been here from the beginning of the season and will stay until the close. Phil King, with Harry Brown and Frank Morse, shows up once or twice a week and stirs things up. "Beef" Wheeler is on the grounds every day to coach the guards. All of the coachers don their suits and give practical illustrations of their theories to the men.

Bort Waters Says a Game May Yot Be

Bosron, Oct. 6 .- Although yesterday was the last day of grace for Yale to make a proposition to Harvard in regard to a football game this fall, no definite knowledge can be obtained that such a proposition has been made. Prof. Beale says that no proposition has been received from Yale, and he did not suppose that any would be made. Prof. Ames is away. On the whole, the slim just now. To-morrow Manager Rogers will try to fill the open date. Nov. 9, which has been reserved in consideration of the possibility of a game being arranged between Harvard and Yale.

Yale.

Bert Waters says: "It does not seem to me that Prof. Ames or any one else has meant to imply that no Yale game could be arranged after Oct. 5. What the authorities have intended to express was the determination to fill all dates if Yale did not make some proposition by Oct. 5. This they will undoubtedly do if no proposition has been received, but I think that if any dates remain open a game may possibly be arranged yet."

football team has been steadily improving during the past week, despite the fact that several of the best players have been laid off on account of injuries. Capt. Wilson has not practised since last Monday, when he sprained his ankle in a practice game, but it is expected that he will be all right in a week or two. His place at quarter has been taken by Raymond, a freshman, who is showing up well. Archer Young, one of the twins who guards the ends, is also laid up with a wrenched knee, and Townsend, a freshman from Penington, who is considered sure of a place on the line, has been suffering from a slight attack of the line, has been suitering from a slight attack of tosilillist.

Pullman, captain of the '92 team; Steele, who played end two years ago, and Sanford of Yale have had charge of the coaching during the week and have succeeded in teaching the players some of the principles of team work. Sanford's influence is especially seen in the improved play of the centre men, and the line how bids fairtto be the strongest part of the team. There is still a lack of candidates for positions behind the line, especially at full back. Capt. Wilson is the only man in college who can punt respectably, but his presence is needed at quarter. The most promising candidates for the position at present are Norris and E. Raymond, but neither seems up to the 'varsity standard. his presents is the position at present candidates for the position at present the first seam up to the 'varsity E. Raymond, but neither seems up to the 'varsity standard.

There is also a dearth of half backs. Berrien and Anderson have been doing the best work this week, but they cannot be said to be sure of their places. Peiffer, who had been piaying tackle, is being tried at haif, and, though not a speedy runner, is a fairly good line bucker and follows his interference well. It is possible that the coachers will decide to play Townsend behind the line instead of at guard when he comes out again, but he has never played the position, and the result of the experiment is decidedly doubtful. The first regular game will be with the Amherst Aggies, next Friday, and then there will be an opportunity of deciding on the real merits of the eleven.

DEFENDER'S WINTER BERTH

WHERE AMERICA'S DANDY SINGLE STICKER IS MOORED.

In a Little Creek Back of Glen Island, Near the Mugnenot Yacht Club's Home-Capt. Haff Says It Would Cost $300 a Day to Put Her in the Dry Bock-All Rendy for Next Senson's Racing, and Her Shipper Nos Afraid of Valkyrie or Anything Else,

The Defender, the yacht which through the use of precious metals in her construction cost Messrs. Vanderbilt, Morgan, and Iselin something like $200,000 to equip and maintain, and the boat which carried the hopes and dollars of all true patriots in the last cup contest, now that her work is finished, was laid up for the season in a little creek back of Glen Island on Wednesday. While this seems a rather tame ending to what promised to be a glorious season's racing, it was no fault of any lightens her hull considerably, and she now seems to have tremendous freeboard, as her bronze bottom shows for fully a foot all along her water line.

Her aluminum topeides received a final coat of the blue anti-corrective paint, and the last of her Yankee crew, a dozen in all, left for home on Thursday. Two big anchors, with heavy wire cable, hold the Defender forward, while aft two immense chain cables hold her stern in position. One of these chains is connected with an immense mooring anchor, while the other is made fast to a ring in a big rock which juts out threateningly near the Glen Cove shore, so that nothing short of an earthquake could move her.

As THE SUN reporter went to take a farewell look at the Defender he noticed a tall, graybearded man leaning on the club hense rail looking lovingly at the Defender's eleanecut dines and beautiful hull. In a moment the man turned round, and the reporter saw that it was Capt. Hank Haff, the Defender's famous skipper, who was studying the cup defender so studiously. Capt. Haff gave an apologetic little laugh when he saw the reporter, and said, "Well, my boy, I kinder hate to leave her. She never had a chance to show what she could de. I tell you she is faster than any one has any idea of. She has never been let out yot."

The reporter remarked that she might have a chance next year. Capt. Haff said, "That's so, but it does seem a shame after all the money one connected with the manganese-aluminum boat that she did not wind up her career in a blaze of glory. The Defender's racing career, however, is not over by any means, with the Valkyrie still here and another challenger coming. The Defender seemed to realize this as much as any one, for yesterday she tugged vig-orously at four anchor chains, and with her canvas-covered nose pointed toward Brooklyn seemed to bid defiance to the Erie Basin in general and the Valkyris in particular. The De-fender is lying in a little arm of the Sound, about 200 feet wide, between Glen Island and New Rochelle, about a hundred yards from the Huguenot Yacht Club house and a cable's length from the chain ferry which connects Glen Island and the mainland in summer. She has been stripped of all her rigging and spars except her mast, bowsprit, and shrouds, but could be got ready for the starting signal inside of ten days. Her racing spars and canvas have all been stowed either at Piepgras's yard, City Island, or in C. Oliver Iselin's boat house, which that was spent on this boat that we only got one race. I tell you, though." said the Captain, his face brightening up, "that new fellow Ross seems to be a blood. He don't want any conditions or anything else; he just wants to race."

When asked if the Defender would race the Valkyrie next year. Capt. Haff said, "Well, I understand the Defender is to be raced, and, if the Valkyrie happens to be there, I suppose there will be a race."

Capt. Haff said that he thought the Defender's present mooring was one of the best that Capt. Haff said that he thought the Defender's present mooring was one of the best that could have been picked out. There is twenty feet of water there at low tide, and under that about ten feet of soft mud, so she can't hurt herself. Her bronze bottom is anti-corrosive, while her aluminum top sides are now so high out of water that no sait water can reach them. No one will remain on board, but a watchman has been employed to look after her during the winter.

When asked why the Defender had not been hauled out for the winter. Capt. Haff said, "Well, you know she draws so much water there is no place we could pull her out, while it would cost us $300 a day to put her on the dry dock." dry dock."

Capt. Haff took his last meal on her yester-day morning, and, after battening down the hatches, he left on an afternoon train for Islip.

EVERY LEAGUE CLUB SHUT OUT. Baltimore Club and Pitcher Hawley Lead the " Whitewashing" Business

Nearly 800 games were played by the National League clubs during the season just ended, and one or more runs were made by each team in every game excepting forty-four. Every club was shut out in one or more games, and every club applied the "whitewash" brush excepting Washington. The Philadelphias took part in only two such games, less than any of the clubs. Washington was the only club that the Quakers "whitewashed," while St. Louis was the only club to stop Irwin's men from scoring.
The champion Baltimores lead with eight such games. Only one club was shut out more than twice, the Clevelands "Chicagoing" the Cincinnatis in three games. Both games in which the Now Yorks failed to score were played at the Polo grounds. Three of the six games in which the New Yorks applied the brush were played away from home, two at Chicago and one at Cleveland. The Brooklyns were the "whitewashers" in two games away from the home grounds. Both were played at Louisville. The following table does not include forfeited games:

Hawley leads the pitchers in the shutting-out process with five games, while Rusie, Young, and Hoffer have four games each to their credit. Kennedy accomplished the feat twice, and both times the Pittsburghs were the opposing players. McMahon has shut out three clubs, but his record is the best, as he pitched less games than the other twirlers who lead him in the table found below: STATE A STOLETON AND STATE

FUNERAL OF HARRY WRIGHT. Impressive Seenes Where the Services Were Held and at the Cemetery.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6 .- The funeral of Harry Wright, the well-known baseball manager and chief of the staff of League umpires, took place to-day. From noon until 3 o'clock, the hour of departure for West Laurel Hill Cemetery, the streets in the neighborhood of the house of Frank Hough, one of Mr. Wright's most intimate friends, where the funerel services were held, were crowded with persons. Baseball men of prominence from all parts of the country were present.

At the cemetery there was another big crowd, The honorary pall bearers were: N. E. Young, J. Reach, John I. Rogers, C. H. Byrne, J. C. Chapman, P. T. Powers, William Barnie, William Sharsig, Lewis Simmons, and Charles Mason. The acting pall bearers, also intimate associates of Mr. Wright, were Arthur A. Irwin, Manager of the Philadelphia Club: William J. Shetsline, Secretary Philadelphia Club; Frank Hough, S. H. Jones, William H. Voltz, and

The floral offerings were numerous and elaborate. From the National League there was a massive ladder, three and a half feet high, em-bedded in a bank of roses three and a half feet souare. Messrs, Reach, Rogers, and Shetsline of the Philadelphia Club sent a reproduction of a baseball diamond with the words "Safe at home" running across the plate. The Brooklyn Club, through its President, Charles H. Byrne, contributed a magnificent floral lyre, eight feet high, made almost entirely of the most exquisite red roses.

The Century Wheelmen's remembrance of their late member took the shape of a most artistic broken column. A. G. Spaulding and J. W. Spaulding remembered their old-time friend and associate with a broken column of English ivy and white roses. The Baltimore players sent a magnificent bank of flowers surmounted by an arch, on the top of which was assended a dove.

The Wagner brothers of the Washington Club sent a cross made entirely of white plnks, and P. T. Powers, President of the Eastern League, sent a magnificent cross of try entwined by immortelles. John C. Chapman, manager of the Toronto Club, sent a palm cross, while at the head of the casket lay a beautiful pillow, the remembrance of the players of the Philadelphia team.

The Scorers' Association of Philadelphia, of which Mr. Wright was a member, sent a scroll on which was the legend, "All Out," a legend that was suggested by Mr. Wright's dying remark to his son, "There are two men out."

FIGHTING.

Efforts Made to Have the Big Battle Deelded in the Chicksonw Nation.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 6 .- If Corbett, Fitzsimmons, their backers or managers, and Dan Stuart agree with the citizens of Ardmore and the Sauta Fé officials the contest will be pulled off at the town of Ardmore, in the Chickasaw Nation, Indian Territory, about 120 miles north of Fort Worth, on the Santa Fé Railroad. The railway company will move the arena from finished and all of the lumber was on the grounds. Cornett, Brady, and Joe Vendig of the Fiorids A. C., are to meet Dan Stuart at Dallas on Monday night or Tuesday morning If it is possible. Julian and Fitzsimmons have decided on Monday night or Tuesday merning if it is possible. Julian and Fitzsimmons have decided not to leave Corpus Christi.

United States Attorney Croce, in whose district the Chickasaw Nation is, says the Federal laws prohibit the fight, and he will see they are enforced. Good attorneys as he, however, deny the soundness of his position. Granting that he is correct, this difficulty can be overcome by the Chickasaw Legislatuse now in session formally granting, as it has the power, the rights of citizenship to the pugillsts. This would make them only amenable to the laws of the Chickasaw Nation, except for certain grave crimes of which the laws of the United States take cognizance. them only amenatic to the laws of the Chicka-saw Nation, except for certain grave crimes of which the laws of the United States take cog-nizance.

GUTHRIE, Oct. 6.—A big meeting of business men held here last night canvassed the law and decided that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons mill could be held here without any legal complica-tions. They will telegraph the managers of the fighters to come here.

Banker Defeats Barros at Paris. Paris, Oct. 6.-Banker, the American bloy-

THE MORRIS PARK MEETING BE. GINS NEXT WEEK.

Everything Being Done to Make It an Unqualified Success-Four Days' Racing at Gravesend and Then for Westchester-American Nominations for English and Franch Stakes - Entries for To-day. Everything is in readiness for the meeting

f the Westchester Racing Association, which will begin one week from to-morrow with a rilliant card. The programme, which has already been discussed in this column, is the est of the year. It was specially framed to bring the best horses in training to the post. It was designed that not only might the new association win at once for itself the premier-ship of the turf, but that the year should have a brilliant ending. This meeting, it is realized, will be the recommendation and the guarantee for 1896. Its promoters are proceeding with enterprise and resolution. What is needed is furnished without any special regard as to whether there will or will not be adequate financial return; nor should the association worry on that score. New Yorkers are proverbially generous. They insist on having the best, but when that is furnished they are not ungrateful. At Morris Park they will have the best. It is not alone in the actual races they will find that there has been generosity shown. No one will fall to remark that the attendants everywhere will exhibit a courtesy that is due guests and patrons, and not, as has heretofore unfortunately been too frequent, have them looked upon as if the association regarded it was doing them a favor in even permitting their presence. The meeting will mark a new era in our turf history, for which the best friends of the sport have looked for long, but scarce hoped to see realized so soon. It is the etalls, after all, that make perfection, and that is as true of sport as it was when Corregis said it of paintings. To these detairs there has been paid a vast amount of care. The improvements in the grand stand, the refitting of the club house, the construction of a beautiful coaching ground, and the care taken to popularize the paddock, have all been told of in print before. To have done all this would, of itself, have been sufficient commendation, but the association did not rest content there. It went outside and it used the personal influence of its promoters in having the routes to the course put in such condition as to make the journey pleasant. To obtain better railroad ocurse put in such condition as to make the journey pleasant. To obtain better railroad facilities for those who have not the leisure or the convenience for driving was only a matter of business. That has been done. There will be as good facilities for going to and rewill be as good facilities for going to and rewill be as good facilities for going to and rewill be as good facilities for going to and returning from Morris Park as there was at Monmouth, where 20,000 persons were accommodated in half an hour. The train service will be prompt and adequate. Expresses will be run on the elevated and the steam surface transit will be on a plan not heretofore equalled at Morris Park.

Very special attention has also been given toward arranging driving routes that will attract society. It is one of the very pleasant features that society is actively interesting itself in the meeting. Lenox will be practically deserted, and the Morris Park club house under new auspices, will be the temple toward which all roads will lead. Dozens of coaching parties have already made engagements. No more lovely drive could possibly be fancied than will be afforded in those trips. Hill and dale browned with an autumn sun, the leaves taking on the colors of the sunset, all nature wholesome looking and invigorating, the landscape diversified in a lovely profusion, all that was needed to make a drive through it an enduring charm was to dower it with good roads. That has been done, until to-day there is no more delightful drive in this State than the road to Morris Park by way of McComb's Dam bridge and Sedgwick avenue.

The drive through the Park needs no mention. Leaving it and taking 110th street and Seventh avenue as a real starting point, you proceed along this fine boulevard to 153d street, and thence across to McComb's Dam lane, which is the entrance to the bridge. Crossing McComb's Dam bridge, take the first turn to the left and proceed via Sedgwick avenue here is cased to escape possible danger from the fludson River Railroad. It is by society.

There were times when some folks shrugged their shoulders at the mention of society in connection with sport, but society has done nobly by the turf this year, and it gives assurance of doing still better. It can afford to race for the sake of the sport, and its interest is one ance of doing still better. It can afford to race for the sake of the sbort, and its interest is one of the best guarantees the turf has for its perpetuation. When good hearty sportsmen in society become rivals in racing, the whole public is the gainer. It means keener competition, an enhancement of the value of high-class horses, and in no manner clashes with that broad democracy which has always been the highest beast of the sport. It is adding an element that was sought for, but that could only in a mild degree be had under the old order of things. It can be said with fullest proof behind it that there are four gentleman, able to support stables for the recreation it will give them, who are casting about now for trainers in whose judgment they can have confidence. When men get to that stage it means they will go ahead. There is a grateful welcome for all of them. Morris Park's meeting will encourage them. It will reach them where no other could, for there they will see racing as it ought to be, and what it undoubtedly will be in other places. The standard that it will set must be followed.

them. Morris Fark's meeting will encourage them. It will reach them where no other could, for there they will see racing as it ought to be, and what it undoubtedly will be in other places. The standard that it will set must be followed.

This is the final week of the Brooklyn Jockey Club's meeting, and on Saturday next the gates of the Gravesend course will be closed for the year. The Gravesend course will be closed for the year. The Gravesend course will be closed for the year down the kelping course of the Gravesen should be warmest interest in the sport, and now in the closing days, when the season is on the wane. Rey del Carreres and Ben Brush are popular idos. Horsemen are unanimous in the opinion that Rey del Carreres is at present one of the fastest horses that ever appeared in this country, and there is a general desire to see him turned loose down the Eclipse course at Morris Fark with 110 pounds on his back. Thus weighted the long-atriding Californian could undoubtedly eclipse all records at from a quarter of a mile to six furlongs. It is a pity Demino has been thrown out of training, for if there was a horse capable of taking Rey del Carreres to camp the black fellow is the one. But Domino is out of the way and there is at present nothing in sight capable of beating Baldwin's champion.

Concerning the taking of Hey del Carreres to England, one of the best Judges of thoroughbrods and how they should be trained, ventured the prophecy that the horse would not win a race in England if taken abroad. "He is a norvous horse and does not want much work. The two week's trip on the steamer would so trained the prophecy that the horse would not win a race in England if taken abroad.

PROUD OF HIS GAME LEG.

Charles Buclow Will Undertake a Novel

Bicyclers who get out early enough on the Coney Island road next Sunday will have an opportunity to act as pacemakers in a novel race against time. The racer is Charles Buelow, a manufacturer of boxes, who lives at 247 East 112th street. In June of 1892 he fell from an elevated road platform and broke hi left leg in several places. For a long time l was under the doctor's care, and seven piec Mr. Buelow was bidden to rise and walk, Sir then he has been not only walking, but r ning, jumping, skating, and going in other sports, despite the fact that his left is somewhat shorter than it really ought to He is very proud of his game member, claims it is just as good as anybody elieft leg. In fact, he got to talking so mu about it that recently some of his friends together and offered to bet him $50 that couldn't walk from 125th street to the Bre lyn Bridge.

AROUND THE CHESS BOARD.

Pilisbury Hopes to Play Better-Lasker on His Defeat at Hastings.

H. N. Pillsbury was seen by a reporter of Tun Sun at the Brooklyn Chess Club yesterday. where he made the following statement: "I wish to express my thanks to those who sent kind letters and cable messages to me in England and telegrams and letters since my return home. I did what I could, by careful preparation and singleness of purpose, to win honor for the country and chub whose representative I was, and I hope, with added knowledge as the result of that contest, to do still better. The victory was a great pleasure to me, chiefly because it seemed to prove that Americans can play chess and need not be afraid to meet the world over the board. "I wish to say a few words as to my standing in chess. I do not claim to be champion of any-Whatever position is fairly awarded to me I will stand upon. So also with the making of boastful comparisons between my own chess powers and those of any of the other masters, I wish distinctly to say that I have never made any such comparisons, and do not consider them either modest or gentlemanly. When a match is contested the result will determine all such questions.

"I have been urged, particularly since my return, to go to St. Petersburg, and it is simply

"I have been urged, particularly since my return to go to St. Petersburg, and it is simply a matter of attention to my business which will determine my action in this matter. If I cannot rightly leave my business I shall stay here and do what I can to urge on a great international chess tournament in America. If I can be spared from my work here I hope to compete in December in Russia. A few days will determine this."

"Before leaving England Lasker was interviewed at London, and a long story was printed in all the leading German newspapers. The following is a translation and abstract of the interview: "I don't like to make excuses. I only wish to say that I suffered from exhaustion during the Hastings international tournament. This was proved by the fact that I threw away games which I ought to have won, like the one with Tarrasch, or the ones with Aibin or Mason, two games which I drew when I had them dead won. It was not my brain power, but my nerves being weak, which caused me to make great blunders. It was too much work to play for four weeks five games per week.

"Pillsbury's achievement." said Lasker in reply to a question whether it was right to compare him with Morphy, "was doubtless very brilliant, and at the same time very much surprising; but it seems too soon to give a positive opinion about him now. Such a contest meaning the Hastings event) equals a chess obstacle race. Not the quality of the contestants, but their style, is to be taken into consideration. Of course I shall play a match with Pillsbury, or anybody who would like to challenge me for the championship of the world. There is certainly a chance for a meeting, as the Hastings Club has approached me semi-officially on the subject. They want me to play with either Tschigorin or Pillsbury. As the former would scarcely be able to get away from Russia, the match must be played in England. I fancy that there is a good chance for a match between myself and Pillsbury, provided the latter gets backing to the amount of $2,000. A large amount of m are prize winners, but the third prize goes to Wicke, as Helms and Tatum, both with higher percentages, were disqualified for not having played the regular number of opponents. Dr. J. R. Taber won the special prize for the greatest number of games won. The following are the high scores of the tournament:

Willie B. Outsails the Kingasher.

The match race between the Kingfisher, owned by Commodore Albert Wrege of the Communipaw Yachi Club, and the Willis B., owned by Capt. Matthew Bradley of the Oceanic Yacht Club, was sailed rester-day morning on New York Bay. The crew aboard the Willie B. were very clever in handling the sheet and willie R were very clever in handling the sheet and moving the sandbags about, which enabled them to cross the finish line S minutes and 14 seconds ahead of the rival boat. Both the start and finish were from a stakeboat anchored off the club house of the Oceanic Yacht Club, with the turning points at the buoys off Liberty and Black Ton Islands, salied over three times, making a triangular course of ten miles. The stakes were $20 a side. Summary:
